

Published on Marine Ecosystems and Management (MEAM) (<https://meam.openchannels.org>)

From the Archives: Mining social media: The new world of abundant, ‘messy’ data and what marine conservation and management can learn from it (MEAM May 2018, Issue 11:7)

Editor's Note: From the Archives calls attention to past Skimmer/MEAM articles whose perspectives and insight remain relevant.

Coverage of social media usually focuses on how social media platforms (e.g., Twitter, Facebook) can be used to communicate with and educate stakeholders and the general public. But social media also provides publicly available information on how people are using and feeling about the marine environment. Learn how social media and other digital data are being used for marine conservation and management.

Source URL: <https://meam.openchannels.org/news/skimmer-marine-ecosystems-and-management/archives-mining-social-media-new-world-abundant-messy#comment-0>