

Published on Marine Ecosystems and Management (MEAM) (<https://meam.openchannels.org>)

Were you on holiday/in the field during July and August? Catch up on The Skimmer!

In case you missed it, last month's issue of The Skimmer featured original articles:

- Expanding our view of voices that matter: New perspectives on ocean stakeholders. As economies, technologies, and climate shift, it is critical to reexamine our views of who ocean stakeholders are, their relative importance, and how we engage them. Read fascinating new perspectives on ocean stakeholders.
- An end to harmful fisheries subsidies may be coming soon – and that could help a marine ecosystem near you. Every year, national governments collectively provide an estimated US$20 billion to their domestic fishing industries in ways that hurt marine ecosystems and many coastal communities. Learn about harmful fisheries subsidies and global efforts to eliminate them.

Source URL: <https://meam.openchannels.org/news/skimmer-marine-ecosystems-and-management/were-you-holidayin-field-during-july-and-august-catch#comment-0>